Тема 5. Работа в команде

Задание 1. Read the text. When you first read the text, don't worry about the numbers in brackets. You will fill in the gaps in the following Exercise.

THERE'S NO "I" IN COMPANY: THE IMPORTANCE OF TEAMWORK IN THE COMPANY

Have you ever wondered why a business plan should include a section on the (1)_____ team? What about why the leadership team is mentioned in a public company's annual report? The answer is simple. People make the company.

No matter how brilliant a business idea, people must carry it out, and the wrong people will fail, disappointing investors. The leadership team sets the tone at the top. If they are capable team players, then they spread the message that teamwork is vital to the company's success, and the company's employees will strive to work together.

Have you ever worked on a team where everyone got along well, did their part, and felt free to share ideas? Did this experience not produce better results than when you worked on a team where everyone argued, some lazy people did nothing, and a loud few dominated the (2)_____? Teamwork, or lack thereof, distinguishes these two experiences.

If you had a choice of working in a company where teamwork is a vital part of the (3)_____ culture versus a company where teamwork doesn't exist, where would you want to work? I would choose the company with teamwork because working for it would be less stressful. I am an intelligent, capable worker, but I don't want to have so much work that it takes over my life. Such a situation would lead to burnout, which could inspire me to quit my job. Companies don't like having high employee turnover if it can be avoided because it can raise their recruitment, training, and compensation costs.

Being able to split jobs up into smaller tasks which are assigned to multiple people, management can increase productivity by better utilizing its employees. Instead of having one person complete a whole process, start to finish, the company can give that person the tasks in the process that best align with his skill set, thereby cutting down on that employee's frustration level resulting from doing what he isn't good at. Constant repetition of specific types of tasks will make that employee more (4)_____ at them, decreasing production time. This can mean less overtime, which saves the company money (for hourly employees). From the employees' point of view, doing things faster and working less overtime means going home earlier, creating a better work-life balance.

Now a process is as slow as its slowest step. If the slower steps are sped up, then the whole process can be completed much faster. Identification of better ways to perform a process requires help from the people performing the process. How helpful do you think these employees will be if they feel that their jobs are threatened? An environment where teamwork is emphasized can change how these people think about their jobs, making them more likely to cooperate in process redesign. They should be more willing to answer questions about how the process currently works. In addition, team players should be more likely to voice their ideas for improving things because they're used to thinking that people listen to their input and take it into (5)_____.

In a teamwork environment, the team takes responsibility for the process they are performing, and the employees are (6)_____. That means if one person spots something wrong that doesn't relate to his task, he is more likely to mention the problem to the relevant person, so it can be fixed. Thus, the process's output should be of higher quality. This can result in higher revenue because customers appreciate high quality. (7)_____ can result in happier employees, and happier employees will be more interested in doing what's good for the company, instead of sabotaging the company's efforts. Like I said before, people make the company (by Samuilovna, Yahoo Contributor Network).

NEW LAND ROVERS REVEALED

Land Rover's line-up is set to expand to 16 models by 2020 - and we've got the details of them all, including a 4m baby three-door, and BMW X5 rival and a five-car Defender family

Land Rover has embarked on a massive new model blitz that could more than double its annual sales by 2020. It is almost certainly the biggest investment that the UK car industry has ever seen. Land Rover's future model line-up will fully cover the three main areas of the booming global SUV market – luxury, leisure and utility.

According to Land Rover's design director Gerry McGovern, the brand is set to expand all three of its model families. The plans include additional models for the Range Rover line-up, a new Defender family and a radical expansion of the Freelander range that will create four new 'leisure' SUVs during the next seven years.

Land Rover sources refuse to estimate the potential size of the car-maker once the seven-year plan has been introduced. However, market data suggests the global SUV market will reach 22 million units by 2020. If, by radically expanding its line-up, Land Rover captured around three per cent of that market, it would be close to producing 600,000 vehicles annually.

Hilton Holloway: What is Land Rover chasing?

According to what McGovern describes as a "holistic approach" to its future range, Land Rover plans to extend the Range Rover line-up to six models, including an 'Evoque XL', which slots into the hole that currently exists between the Evoque and the new Range Rover Sport and a convertible Evoque. A baby three-door Range Rover just 4m long is also being considered.

The new Land-Rover-badged 'leisure' line-up will have at least five new models, kicking off with an entry-level Freelander similar in size to today's Evoque. The Freelander itself will be reinvented in five-seat and seven-seat forms. The range will be topped by a new Discovery, which could switch to an aluminium platform, and be offered as a flagship to rival the successful BMW X5.

In the 'dual purpose' or 'utility' segment, Land Rover's plan indicates that a production version of the Evoque-based DC100 is heading for the showroom, as well as the long-discussed replacement for the Defender.

McGovern's plan shows outline drawings for five-seat and seven-seat new Defenders as well as a crew-cab pick-up.

This dramatic expansion will put a huge strain on the investment and engineering capabilities of Jaguar Land Rover. JLR boss Ralf Speth has already spoken about 40 new JLR product launches in the next five years. He has pledged £2bn a year to underpin this, with the £10bn investment funding at least one new platform, plus increased capacity in the UK.

However, not all of this investment is expected to be focused on the UK. JLR is wisely spreading its production footprint around the world to take advantage of booming global markets.

Reports from China in early October said that the JLR joint venture with Chinese car maker Chery gained approval in record time from the Chinese National Development and Reform Commission.

About £1.8 billion will be invested in a new Chinese plant that will, in the first stages, have the capacity to build 130,000 vehicles per year, about 60 per cent of which will be Land Rover models.

Reports say that Land Rover sales in China hit 47,975 units in the first eight months of the year, 85 per cent up on the same period in 2011. Its 96 Chinese dealer outlets will also soon be expanded by a further 47 showrooms.

China is now JLR's second biggest market, just behind the UK, and Chinese tastes are increasingly turning away from conventional luxury saloon cars towards SUVs.

Buyers of premium vehicles in China and Russia are also pushing for the opportunity to buy more limited-edition vehicles and customised styling packs, an opportunity JLR's design teams are eager to capitalise on.

Back in the UK, JLR has put the finishing touches to its new aluminium press shop at Solihull and has just completed a new quality inspection building for the new Range Rover and its future sister vehicles.

Work is also underway on the new JLR engine factory to be built in the West Midlands/Staffordshire area, while much of the research work into a new generation of super-frugal four-cylinder 'Hotfire' engines is being carried out by UK universities, including Warwick and Loughborough (by Hilton Holloway).

Тема 10. Собеседования на работу

Задание 1: Read the text. When you first read the text, don't worry about the numbers in brackets. You will fill in the gaps in the following Exercise.

THERE'S NO "I" IN COMPANY: THE IMPORTANCE OF TEAMWORK IN THE COMPANY

Have you ever wondered why a business plan should include a section on the (1)_____ team? What about why the leadership team is mentioned in a public company's annual report? The answer is simple. People make the company.

No matter how brilliant a business idea, people must carry it out, and the wrong people will fail, disappointing investors. The leadership team sets the tone at the top. If they are capable team players, then they spread the message that teamwork is vital to the company's success, and the company's employees will strive to work together.

Have you ever worked on a team where everyone got along well, did their part, and felt free to share ideas? Did this experience not produce better results than when you worked on a team where everyone argued, some lazy people did nothing, and a loud few dominated the (2)_____? Teamwork, or lack thereof, distinguishes these two experiences.

If you had a choice of working in a company where teamwork is a vital part of the (3)_____ culture versus a company where teamwork doesn't exist, where would you want to work? I would choose the company with teamwork because working for it would be less stressful. I am an intelligent, capable worker, but I don't want to have so much work that it takes over my life. Such a situation would lead to burnout, which could inspire me to quit my job. Companies don't like having high employee turnover if it can be avoided because it can raise their recruitment, training, and compensation costs.

Being able to split jobs up into smaller tasks which are assigned to multiple people, management can increase productivity by better utilizing its employees. Instead of having one person complete a whole process, start to finish, the company can give that person the tasks in the process that best align with his skill set, thereby cutting down on that employee's frustration level resulting from doing what he isn't good at. Constant repetition of specific types of tasks will make that employee more (4)_____ at them, decreasing production time. This can mean less overtime, which saves the company money (for hourly employees). From the employees' point of view, doing things faster and working less overtime means going home earlier, creating a better work-life balance.

Now a process is as slow as its slowest step. If the slower steps are sped up, then the whole process can be completed much faster. Identification of better ways to perform a process requires help from the people performing the process. How helpful do you think these employees will be if they feel that their jobs are threatened? An environment where teamwork is emphasized can change how these people think about their jobs, making them more likely to cooperate in process redesign. They should be more willing to answer questions about how the process currently works. In addition, team players should be more likely to voice their ideas for improving things because they're used to thinking that people listen to their input and take it into (5)_____.

In a teamwork environment, the team takes responsibility for the process they are performing, and the employees are (6)_____. That means if one person spots something wrong that doesn't relate to his task, he is more likely to mention the problem to the relevant person, so it can be fixed. Thus, the process's output should be of higher quality. This can result in higher revenue because customers appreciate high quality.

(7)_____ can result in happier employees, and happier employees will be more interested in doing what's good for the company, instead of sabotaging the company's efforts. Like I said before, people make the company (by Samuilovna, Yahoo Contributor Network).
